

Mendeley & Data Repositories: New Tools for Discovery and Collaboration

Jonathan Cain

Assistant Professor & Reference and Instruction Librarian
Hunter College, CUNY

DATE: WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27, 2012

TIME: 2:00 – 3:00 pm EDT/PR

OBJECTIVES:

- Learn about Mendeley - one of the fastest growing tools for academic social networking, bibliographic management and scholarly communication.
- Explore Data Repositories - what they are, and how they can help you in researching.

INTENDED AUDIENCE: All Researchers

REGISTER NOW: <http://dtccweb.rtrn.net/openaccess/default.aspx>

Jonathan Cain has wide experience in providing reference and research support for researchers, teaching faculty, as well as graduate and undergraduate students. He obtained his MA from New York University and MSLIS from Pratt Institute. Prior to Hunter College, Jonathan Cain worked as a Science Reference Associate at Coles Science Center, Bobst Library, New York University.

Questions? Contact Megan Anderson, Gene Center, Hunter College, CUNY at anderson@genectr.hunter.cuny.edu

