

Join the Community of Volunteers at Edible Schoolyard NYC

Learn how to grow organic produce in the city.

Work with like-minded people in the fields of education, health and food systems.

Support Edible Education for New York City schoolchildren!

Edible Schoolyard NYC partners with public schools to build gardens and kitchen classrooms where children can engage in hands-on learning. Our goal is to provide students with the knowledge, skills and environment required to make healthier choices and change the way they eat...for life.

We are looking for volunteers to garden at our Brooklyn showcase site, P.S. 216.

The Value of an Edible Education

Students who participate in Edible Schoolyard NYC's program learn how sustainable, organic food choices can transform their health and the health of our planet. At P.S. 216, our garden and kitchen classrooms provide kids with hands-on learning experiences that arm them with the knowledge and skills needed to combat childhood obesity and embrace sustainable eating practices.

Our Volunteers Make an Impact

Volunteers are integral to our success, and through their efforts set an example to students and the community about the value of caring and service. Students accomplish much of the work, but many projects are most appropriate for adults. Volunteers work to further the beauty and productivity of the garden, and maintain spaces for learning and exploration. All levels of experience are welcome here! And we have both long-term and one-time opportunities available.

If you'd like to find out more about volunteering with Edible Schoolyard NYC, contact our program coordinator, Natasha Eziquiel-Shriro at nes@esynyc.org or call 347-0100. Visit us online at www.esynyc.org.

