

Food and Nutrition Programs Unit

Call for Interns

Public Health Solutions is a nonprofit organization that develops implements and advocates dynamic solutions to prevent disease and improve community health. We conduct comprehensive research providing insight on public health issues, create and manage community health programs, and provide services to organizations to address public health challenges. Programs of Public Health Solutions address critical public health needs such as maternal and child health, nutrition, access to health insurance, HIV prevention and care, and smoking cessation. For government agencies, nonprofit organizations and others, Public Health Solutions provides services to enable them to enhance their effectiveness and strengthen their capacity to have an impact and efficiently manage funds.

The Food and Nutrition Programs Unit at Public Health Solutions works to improve health and nutrition, specifically among women, infants, and children. The Food and Nutrition Programs Unit oversees the organization's Neighborhood WIC Program, WIC Vendor Management Program, and Cooking Matters initiative, as well as other grant funded projects to increase access to healthy food and nutrition education in target high-need areas.

The Unit is now accepting applications for Spring and Summer internship/practicum positions. Potential projects include but are not limited to:

- Conducting community assessments in target neighborhoods
- Assisting with community outreach to promote WIC centers and connect recipients with positive referrals
- Supporting program evaluation including survey design, implementation, data entry and analysis
- Assistance with updating social media sites such as Twitter and Facebook
- Leading grocery shopping tours as well as volunteer training for Cooking Matters at the Store
- Materials development and marketing
- Literature reviews, research and report formulation

There may be the potential for an honorarium and/or course credit if applicable. Weekly hours are flexible.
