Premedical Urban Leaders Summer Enrichment Program

SUMMER 2015

Explore careers, gain clinical skills, and broaden your knowledge of medicine, science and technology this summer at Cooper Medical School of Rowan University's 2015 Premedical Urban Leadership Summer Enrichment (PULSE) Program.

PULSE offers academic, clinical, research and service learning opportunities focused on urban medicine. It's free, competitive, and pays a small stipend. Students from urban areas and/or financially disadvantaged backgrounds will receive special consideration.

PULSE runs five full days per week for six weeks. College credit is not offered for PULSE, but the educational enrichment and experiences are invaluable.

Program Outline and Applicant Requirements

PULSE offers three phases designed to serve students at all stages of undergraduate education. The curriculum includes course work, seminars, study skills workshops, and exposure to clinical settings.

Placement of students in Phases I, II, or III will be based on completed courses and academic performance.
