

Build your career with Nutrition Education Programs at the New York City Health Department!

Part-time Summer and Fall Paid Positions are available

- ✓ Provide nutrition and food-based education in underserved communities
- ✓ Earn money helping families learn how to eat healthier
- ✓ Have fun working as part of a team at farmers' markets and/or child care centers
- ✓ Bolster your resume by gaining hands-on experience
- ✓ Network with public health, nutrition and food justice professionals

Join our team of seasonal educators at a farmers' market or food box site this season. Provide education to children and/or adults via free, bilingual nutrition workshops and cooking demonstrations in low-income neighborhoods throughout NYC. Comprehensive, skill building training will be provided. All positions are paid!

Come to an Information Session to learn more!

Where: NYC Health Department
42-09 28th Street, Long Island City, Rm 12-38

When: Wednesday, March 25, 5:00- 6:30 PM OR
Thursday, March 26, 10:00 -11:30 AM

Reservations are Required. Please RSVP to Rachel Berger, Program Coordinator at rberger5@health.nyc.gov by Friday, March 20th.