

Community Engagement Summer Internship with Personalized Nutrition Platform

Who we are:

We're Sage Project, a team of designers, dietitians, and creative technologists with a simple mission: reimagine food and nutrition information by making it more open, simple, and personalized. We've been building the go-to platform (website and app) to give consumers more transparency, more actionable data, and a more personalized look into how food products fit with their unique preferences, restrictions, and goals.

We're looking for a Community Engagement Summer Intern for our NYC office, starting June 4th. Internships come with a modest stipend.

About the role:

You will be working directly with our Community Manager to help grow our community both online and offline as we create new pathways for people to access personalized nutrition and food information. This will involve supporting partnership outreach, social media conversations and postings, online and offline events, as well as supporting on our overall brand engagement and user growth strategy. This is a highly collaborative role and you'll be intersecting with several team members!

What you'll do:

- Help create and schedule creative content across social media channels
- Assist with influencer and partnership outreach initiatives and activations
- Help organize, report on, and prepare analytics around onsite and offsite events
- Assist in engaging with our community (via social media, live events, forums)
- Help grow our food database by adding items that users are asking for

If interested, please email hello@sageproject.com with a few sentences about yourself along with a resume.

Start date is the week of June 4th and will last for 12 weeks until the week of August 20th.

Thanks!
